FROM THE RABBI

Lenny.

Several years ago, while at my previous congregation, a rather unsavory character began showing up to Shabbat services. I will call him "Lenny." Lenny clearly had some kind of personality disorder. He loved to pick fights with people, and his clothes were dirty and smelly. He would always arrive in the middle of services and immediately and conspicuously fall asleep. He would awake just in time for the Kiddush luncheon where he would generously help himself to the food without caring whether there would be enough food left for everyone else. Lisa witnessed him deliberately tripping Johnny, and then mocking Johnny as he fell flat on his face. Johnny was three years old at the time.

I received a call from the president of the synagogue: I, and a number of prominent members of the community, have decided to ban Lenny from the synagogue. I need you to back me up. This was not a request.

The next Shabbat, Lenny arrived during the Torah reading. The president interrupted the Torah reading, approached Lenny, informed him that he was banned from the community and ordered him to immediately leave. As the president had suspected, Lenny looked to me for support. I could barely look Lenny in the eye as I had to tell him that I agreed with the president. Before he stormed out, Lenny fixed his gaze upon me—a gaze that I will never forget. It said: You're a phony, a sell-out. You will come to an ignominious end. The kind of damning, withering look that I imagined Biblical prophets like Jeremiah or Isaiah using to condemn the unfaithful Israelites.

Our Talmud teaches that since the close of the era of Biblical prophecy many centuries earlier, the right to speak on God's behalf, prophecy, has been entrusted to the mentally impaired.

As soon as Lenny left, two of the holier Shabbat regulars rose to walk out in solidarity, declaring that they did not feel comfortable in a shul where not every Jew was welcome to attend services. I pleaded with them not to leave, ultimately persuading them that it would be imprudent to allow someone into our shul who threatened the safety of the children. I myself, however, was not convinced.

To this day, I am not sure that I did the right thing. In fact, I am pretty sure I didn't.

Rabbi Sruli

P.S. Rabbi Sruli and Lisa will be performing a concert at the Turner Gazebo (98 Mathew's Way, Turner) on Tuesday, June 5th at 6:30 p.m. This concert is free and open to the public.

Rabbi Sruli is always happy to speak with and meet with members of our Temple. Please call or text Rabbi Sruli on his cell phone at 914-980-9509 if you would like to speak with him or to arrange a time for a meeting. You can also call or leave a message at the Temple office and Rabbi Sruli will get back to you.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Anne and I have this dream. Well, 'dream' may be too strong of a word. We want to write a book. Though, we don't really know the story. The title would be 'The Joys of an Ordinary Life'.

Maybe the book would be vignettes. Maybe fully written by us or maybe a collaboration of many, showing the joys of an ordinary life from various perspectives.

Most of us have had good lives. (So far. Hopefully, they do not end too soon.) And most of us have not led extraordinary lives. The book would show how an ordinary life to many, can be extraordinary to the self. I would think that my life, to many others has been ordinary. I have not climbed Everest. I have not gone kayaking down a glacial river. I have not invented anything. Yet still, from the self perspective, looking out, I have had a great life, with (hopefully) many more years to come. I have found the love of my life, (to clarify, it is Anne). I have two great children. My father lived to 87 and my mother is still kicking, with that new knee of hers, along at 85. I have two great, caring and loving boys. I have been told, by a number of people, that the way the entire Allen/Bodenheimer family gets along is unusual, yet it feels like it should be common. These are Joys of an Ordinary Life.

I have the same stories about my kids that we all do, maybe with different words, but the same joys. I remember Jake, at age six, chasing a couple of birds knowing he was going to catch them. He did not, but he had one heck of a smile on his face anyway. And I remember Adam, at around nine finishing a soccer season with his team not even getting one win. Yet, when walking home after the last game, he looked at me and said 'I had a blast this season.' These are the Joys of an Ordinary Life.

I remember my dad, just last year, in his final hours, with most of his family surrounding him (two were flying home at the moment), and his last coherent words 'I love you all'. This is a Joy of an Ordinary Life.

I remember my mother making me breakfast, usually French toast, every morning, before school. This is a Joy of an Ordinary Life.

I remember all of the holidays my family has shared, with more to come, and never a fight. Although, maybe a little disagreement over politics. This is a Joy of Ordinary Life.

I remember the support of our community in the difficult times. This is the Joy of an Ordinary Life.

For all of these things, and for all of the things not mentioned, I am so grateful and thankful, that I have been able to have the Joy of an Ordinary Life.

Think of your life. Think of and be grateful and thankful for the Joys in your life and give joy to others as that is part of what makes up the Joys of an Ordinary Life.

Anne and I have this dream. We want to write a book. We don't really know the story, or then again, maybe we are living it.

David Allen
President

This month's Ma Chadash is sponsored by the Allens in memory of Bob Allen. We will all remember the twinkle in his eye when he told a story.

Call Julie to see how you can sponsor an issue of the Ma Chadash.

TEMPLE SHALOM PRESENTS UNFORGETTABLE FOOD, FILM, AND COMMENTARY

Please join us at 11 a.m. on Sunday, June 3, for a delicious Israeli brunch catered by Portland-based chef Haggai Bernstein, followed by a noontime screening of the dramatic film "God on Trial." Rabbi Sruli Dresdner and Jonathan Cohen, professor of philosophy at the University of Maine at Farmington, where he teaches history of philosophy, ethics, logic, and critical thinking, will lead a discussion after the film.

If you plan to attend the brunch, please RSVP by emailing the synagogue at temple6359@aol.com or calling at 207-786-4201 by May 29. Admission to the brunch will be $15 per person by RSVP only.

"God on Trial," an 86-minute 2008 BBC/WGBH television drama directed by Andy De Emmony and written by Frank Cottrell Boyce, takes place in Auschwitz during World War II.

The Jewish prisoners put God on trial in absentia for abandoning the Jewish people. The debate centers on the question: Has God broken his covenant with the Jewish people by allowing the Nazis to commit genocide? The play is based on an event described by Eli Wiesel in his book "The Trial of God," though Boyce describes this tale as "apocryphal." Wiesel later confirmed that the story was true, and that he was personally witness to it."

Los Angeles Times film critic Mary McNamara writes:

"For although the various arguments made during "God on Trial" never deviate from the specific concerns of the Chosen People, larger questions crowd the drama's edges like the silent, rapt men who follow the trial from their bunks. The nature and existence of God, the nature and necessity of faith, the role humans occupy in the universe and, most important, how to reconcile the idea of a loving deity with the ongoing tragedy of war and genocide. They are big topics addressed with a striking lack of sentimentality, quite a feat considering the setting. You will weep, but you will also think. And although the weeping will stop fairly soon after the credits role, with any luck, the thinking will not."

To help us with post-screening "thinking," Sruli and Jonathan will reflect on the film's themes and engage us in a discussion you won't want to miss.

!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!BOOK GROUP NEWS!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

On May 3rd, fourteen of us met in Portland for an early dinner before going to the JCA to hear Dara Horn. She's the author of the book we just read, Eternal Life. We've read all her books and did phone interviews for two of her novels, and she was even better in person. She brought insight into her book and its characters, and talked about her writing process. She answered questions with humor and revelation. A great outing for all!

Then on May 14, we met at the Temple to discuss Eternal Life amongst ourselves. Present were Lindsey Walker, Babs Shapiro, Malca Wilner, Joel Olstein, Bonnie Faiman, Larry Faiman, Judy Abromson, Linda Griswold, Bertha Bodenheimer, Adele Silverman and me, Lesli Weiner. We agreed that the book's magical realism was a bit far-fetched. But once you understood that in order to save the life of their infant son, Rachel and Elazar would have to live their lives over and over again, the romp through two thousand years of history was fascinating. To quote Rachel's 21st century granddaughter, "Dying is what gives life its meaning." Read this book in this life.

Our next book is Beneath A Scarlet Sky by Mark Sullivan. We will meet next on MONDAY, JUNE 11 at 4 PM. Based on a true story of a forgotten hero, this 5 star novel is soon to become a major television event. Here is Amazon's description:

"Pino Lella wants nothing to do with the war or the Nazis. He's a normal Italian teenager—obsessed with music, food, and girls—but his days of innocence are numbered. When his family home in Milan is destroyed by Allied bombs, Pino joins an underground railroad helping Jews escape over the Alps, and falls for Anna, a beautiful widow six years his senior.

In an attempt to protect him, Pino's parents force him to enlist as a German soldier—a move they think will keep him out of combat. But after Pino is injured, he is recruited at the tender age of eighteen to become the personal driver for Adolf Hitler's left hand in Italy, General Hans Leyers, one of the Third Reich's most mysterious and powerful commanders.

Now, with the opportunity to spy for the Allies inside the German High Command, Pino endures the horrors of the war and the Nazi occupation by fighting in secret, his courage bolstered by his love for Anna and for the life he dreams they will one day share."

We also chose our next group of books. Write them in your calendars!

Person Of The Year 2018

We chose to honor this person THIS year, not because this is the first year we have noticed what a hard worker she is. She is not a member on any committee, yet serves on all when asked. She doesn't even belong to Book Group, but helps many members download free ebooks. Matter of fact, she is our answer-girl for anything concerning computers and technology. Everyone wants her to continue to host Lunch 'n Learn, not only because of how welcome she makes us feel in her beautiful, spacious home, but because of the special, delicious lunches she provides. She is our own personal gourmet caterer, and you know how important food is to the total Jewish experience!

No, THIS year was special because there were some holes that needed filling, and this person did not wait to be asked. Ever since Lisa started working full time, our wonderful Temple library was uncared for. It was impossible to move around in the back room of the office because there were so many boxes of donated books waiting for someone to go through them. There were also stacks of unshelved books that people had borrowed and returned. This person culled books we didn't want or had too many copies of, re-categorized and re-catalogued the books and then re-labeled the shelves. Now the back office is cleaned out, the books are easy to find and the library looks marvelous. Many hours of work went into this.

Also, Julie took a long leave of absence this year, and we hired Melissa to fill in. As many of us suspected, it takes more than one person to fill Julie's shoes. So when Melissa yelled "Help!" this person came running. She helped get the Ma Chadash out each month, and the Yahrzeit notices too.

There are other ways she has volunteered to benefit our Temple community. Too many to mention here. But I do want to say that this has been a trying time for her family this year and she has been the quiet force that has held them all together. Her father-in-law died, her husband needed back surgery, her son was laid up with a broken leg and her mother-in-law had numerous health issues. This person took care of them all, and always with high energy and a smile on her face.

I'm afraid I got this person here tonight under false pretenses. I asked her to be in charge of the kitchen, and of course, she said yes. This person prefers to stay in the background with no accolades, so I'm sure she is aghast that we are even talking about her. I am in awe of her and in everything she does, especially the small things. It gives me great pleasure to present The Person Of The Year Award to Anne Allen!.....Lesli Weiner

Yahrzeiten

If you are observing a yahrzeit and are planning to come to Thursday morning minyan to say Kaddish, we urge you to contact Bob Laskoff (ral@laskofflaw.com) and let him know so that he can include that information in his weekly reminder email. It is your responsibility to call friends and neighbors to make sure there are enough people for the minyan.

We all enjoy our Thursday morning Minyans and breakfast schmoozes. HELP! We need volunteers to shop and setup. A sign-up sheet is in the kitchen.
